India's Steel Industry
Sector is set to add 31 million tpa production capacity over the next 3 years. The sector is expected to reach 300 million tonnes by 2025 and set to become second largest producer in the world.

In this scenario, we bring this Steel Directory 2023, which profiles the steel making companies both primary producers classified by steel production route - BF/BOF route, EAF route and DRI/induction furnace route. We also profile secondary producers rolling mill units /castings and foundry units with their company profile, current capacity, expansion plans etc., along with contact details like address, tel/fax/email and other details of key personnel.

Overview

Iron & Steel making industry in India is several centuries old. Modern steel industry came into being with Tata Steel in Jamshedpur and now the primary steel production in India is dominated by large players like SAIL, Tata Steel, JSW and Jindal.

The secondary production sector involves small units focused on the production of value-added products such as cold rolled coils, galvanised coils, angles, columns, beams and other re-rollers. Both sectors cater to different market segments. The industry is poised for a big jump, with large capacity expansion programme of steel majors are nearing completion taking Indian steel capacity from 89.0 million tpa to 143.91 million tpa. India is now the second largest producer in the world. Government of India is aiming at rejuvenating the steel sector and removing the hurdles in steel production by scaling up production to 300 MT by 2025

Consumption of Steel 2008 to 2021

India is the world's second -largest producer of crude steel (up from eighth in 2003). The growth in the Indian steel sector has been driven by domestic availability of raw materials such as iron ore and cost-effective labour. Consequently, the steel sector has been a major contributor to India's manufacturing output. The Indian steel industry is very modern with state-of-the-art steel mills. It has always strived for continuous modernisation and upgradation of older plants and higher energy efficiency levels. SAIL, a leading producer is undergoing a major revamping modernization and expansion programme.

After the boom period from 2005 to 2011, now, the domestic steel sector, which has been plagued by low prices, high-level of imports and muted demand growth is showing signs of an early recovery, according to rating agencies and industry analysts.

The signs of a slow revival in the sector's fortunes come as the Ministry of Steel prepares to submit a draft report on measures to relieve the financial stresses on the industry to the Prime Minister's Office.

Indian Steel Sector

Now, the government is reconsidering the minimum import price, which it considers as short term measure. If the minimum import price is lifted, it will hamper the small recovery that the domestic steel industry has seen so far and the country can see increased imports from China and Japan.

Impact of International Market Developments: The global overcapacity in steel sector, particularly in China plays a key role in world of steel. With huge surplus capacity of 423 million tonnes, which is several times higher than Japan and India, who are ranked second and third. China alone accounts for 50% of world steel production. With signs of declining growth in China becoming evident in recent years, there is imminent threat of dumping. Moreover, the devaluation in Chinese Yuan and Russian Rouble have also accelerated the threat of steel imports in India from these two countries.

Raw Materials: The supply of two crucial raw materials - iron ore and coal have seen volatility with forex fluctuations, court intervention, cancellation of mining licenses, closure of mines. Sporadic supplies, lack of clarity have stressed the investment and expansion programme of steel projects. Now, National Mineral Exploration Policy (NMEP) facilitating e-auction and statutory, there is greater transparency in allotment of resources and more predictable.

Competitiveness of Indian Steel Companies: Indian steel manufacturers for a long time enjoyed cheaper raw material, labour cost and a strong domestic market. However, many factors have taken away the advantages. Firstly, added duties /cess on key raw materials coking coal and coal makes domestic coke higher than imported coke/coal. Similarly, sharing of royalty with District Mineral Foundation have increased iron ore costs, share of royalty is now in the range of 15% compared to 5-7% across the globe which makes raw material costlier. Further, transportation costs is the highest in world, it is more than 4 times in some cases makes it uncompetitive. Mitigating the above factors does not have easy solutions which need structural reforms.

THE ROAD AHEAD

Despite, the challenges, India has become the second largest producer of steel by early 2019 replacing Japan and is expected to reach 300 million tonnes by 2025. Latent demand from rural housing construction and low per capita consumption of steel will drive the sector forward, with additional thrust from infrastructure projects of railways, highways, bridges and automotives.
